

ASEDP NO.25

Thai Economy towards the Year 2000

Edited by

Prapant Svetanant
Toshiaki Hayashi

A decorative graphic on the left side of the cover. It features a vertical grey bar with a white rectangular cutout. To the right of the bar, a series of overlapping circles of varying sizes are arranged in a diagonal line from the bottom left towards the top right. The largest circle is partially obscured by the white cutout in the bar.

Institute of Developing Economies
Tokyo 1994

Thai Economy towards the Year 2000

Edited by

Prapant Svetanant
Toshiaki Hayashi

Institute of Developing Economies
Tokyo 1994

AUTHORS

Sothitorn Mallikamas, Ph.D. (Economics)	Faculty of Economics, Chulalongkorn University
Titanun Mallikamas, Ph.D. (Economics)	Research Department, Bank of Thailand
Samart Chiasakul, M.S. (Economics)	Faculty of Economics, Chulalongkorn University
Prapant Svetanant, Ph.D. (Agricultural Engineering)	Faculty of Economics, Chulalongkorn University
Kitti Limskul, Ph.D. (Economics)	Faculty of Economics, Chulalongkorn University
Chuta Manusphaibool, Ph.D. (Population & Development)	Faculty of Economics, Chulalongkorn University
Toshiaki Hayashi, Mr.	Institute of Developing Economies, Tokyo

CONTENTS

Preface	1
Overview	3
Thailand's Saving-Investment Gap by the Year 2000	7
Sothitorn Mallikamas & Titanun Mallikamas
1. Introduction	7
2. Past and Current Situation	8
3. Saving-Investment Gap in the Year 2000	10
4. Conclusion: Is It the Real Problem?	21
Industrial Development Toward the Year 2000	26
Samart Chiasakul
1. Introduction	26
2. Industrialization and Structural Transformation in Thailand	27
3. Future Direction of Thai Industries toward the Year 2000	30
4. Strategies for Industrial Development toward the Year 2000	48
5. Summary and Conclusions	61
Rural Development in Northeast Thailand toward the Year 2000	63
Prapant Svetanant
1. Present Conditions in Northeast Thailand	63
2. The Problems of Northeast Thailand	67
3. The Prospects of Agriculture: Present and Future	74
4. The Opening Up of the Indochina Countries	86
5. A Scenario for the Year 2000	92
Toward a Sustainable Development by a Human Resources Development with Labor Market Information System	95
Kitti Limskul
1. Introduction	95
2. Growth and Structural Changes in Labor Market	96
3. Semi-skilled and Skilled Manpower Supply Production	102
4. Skill Development & Training as Short-term Policy instruments	107
5. The Transmission of Labor Market's Signal by Unionized Employees	114
6. Upgrading and Monitoring of Labor Market Information	118
7. Monitoring Modules of Labor Market Information	125

Social Development Aspects: Women, Children, and Social Welfare Schemes

Chuta Manusphaibool

1. Introduction	132
2. Women and Children Development in Thailand	137
3. Utilization of Women and Child Labour	140
4. Problems related to Employment of Women and Child Labour	143
5. Trend in Women and Child Development	148
6. Social Development Aspects: A Scenario for the Year 2000	150

Chulalongkorn University Printing House
Bangkok 10330, Thailand
April 1994

IDE