

Malayan Chinese and China

I.D.E. Occasional Papers Series No. 33

Malayan Chinese and China
Conversion in Identity Consciousness, 1945–1957

by

Fujio HARA

INSTITUTE OF DEVELOPING ECONOMIES

Tokyo • 1997

© Copyright in 1997 by Institute of Developing Economies
42 Ichigaya-Hommura-cho, Shinjuku-ku, Tokyo, Japan
All rights reserved.
No part of this book may be reprinted by any means without written permission from the Institute

ISBN 4-258-52033-0 C3031

Sole Agent: Maruzen Company, Ltd.
P.O. Box 5050, Tokyo International 100-31, Japan

Produced by Kenkyusha Printing Co.
Printed in Japan

Contents

Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction	1
1 China-Related Public Gatherings and Their Participating Groups	12
2 Chinese-Language Newspapers in Malaya	43
3 The Role of the Consulates	53
4 Chinese Government Policy toward Overseas Chinese	78
Conclusion	98
Appendix 1	105
Appendix 2	116
Glossary	140
Personal Names	152
Bibliography	156
Index	162

Malaya and British Borneo

Note on the Romanization of Chinese Names

- (1) Personal names: The local Malaysian or Singaporean way of romanization has been used in this book. Only when not available, is pinyin spelling used. For instance, Tan Kah Kee is used rather than Chen Jia Geng.
- (2) Place names: Pinyin has been used, i.e., Nanjing, Fujian, and Guangdong rather than Nanking, Hokkien, and Kwangtung.
- (3) Clan-association names: In principle, the associations' own inscriptions have been used. If these have not been available, the place name of the association has usually been written in pinyin.

The personal-names list at the back of the book shows the the name of each person in local (when available) and pinyin romanization as well as in Chinese characters.

The glossary at the back provides the translated English names, the thorough pinyin spellings, and the Chinese characters of the important organizations.